COL. DURBIN SPOKE TO LARGE AUDIENCE

Republican Candidate for Governor
Urged Voters to View Campaign
From Business Standpoint.

ENTIRE COUNTRY PROSPEROUS

Veterans Were Cautioned Against Supporting Pension Plank in the Progressive Platform.

Urging that the voters view this campaign from the business standpoint and declaring that a change in the management of the affairs in the national government would result in hard times, Col. Winfield T. Durbin, republican candidate for governor, addressed a large audience at the Majestic theater Tuesday night. The address was filled with plain pointed facts and the speaker had close attention during the evening. Col. Durbin was introduced by Judge O. H. Montgomery.

Col. Durbin asked "What is the matter with the people of Jackson county?" and answered the query by showing that they were living in an area of unparalleled prosperity, were happy, contented and satisfied. He said that there were no political issues in the campaign and had been none since 1896 when the people had to decide upon the free coinage of silver. The tariff question, he said, was being discussed, but this had entered into every campaign for many years. His speech was an example of clean, progressive, republican politics, making no personal attacks upon the candidates of other parties and confining his speech almost entirely to the discussion of government and state affairs from the standpoint of a business man.

He pointed out that Candidate Wilson was a clean man, but that his election would only result in another panic such as was experienced during the Cleveland administration. He declared that Wilson was not as strong a man politically as Mr. Cleveland, and that Cleveland was not able to control his party and neither would Mr. Wilson be if elected. He said there was a larger demand for laboring men than ever before and that better wages were being paid than for years. If the democratic tariff theory were adopted, he declared, many industries would be killed and those which survive would be paralyzed. Several times during his address Governor Durbin emphasized the fact that the management of the national and state affairs at this time is not a matter of politics so much as it is of business.

He asked the question "What is the matter with President Taft?" but before he had time to answer some one in the audience shouted "He's all right." He said that President Taft was honest, conscientious and was a man of ability and had done for the American people everything that could be done. Objections had been made to President Taft, Mr. Durbin said, upon the ground that he was not a politician, but asserted that the people of the United States did not care whether their president was a politician or not so long as he conducted the affairs of the government rightly. He showed that when President Taft was inaugurated there was a big debt, but that by the application of business principles he had been able to wipe this out.

Col. Durbin's explanation of the state affairs was very interesting. He likened the State of Indiana to a big corporation of which the people were stockholders. He declared that this corporation while under republican control had paid a dividend and under democratic rule the stockholders had been assessed. He cited figures from the books of the auditor of state to show that his administration had been an economic one, that $2,808,000 of the bonded indebtedness had been paid, and that he had provided for the payment of the entire debt before he left the Governor's office.

It was during the Durbin administration that practical business policies were placed into use with the result that from $900,000 to $1,000,000 of the people's money had been saved, although the income during the four years of his administration was $100,000 less than that of the three years of the present administration. The sinking fund is sacred, he declared, and may be regarded the same as a deposit in a bank, yet the democratic administration had taken $978,000 from this fund in order to defray the running expenses of the government. The speaker illustrated this with a bank taking the money of its depositors to pay the expenses of the bank.

Col. Durbin invited Albert J. Beveridge to read his messages to the Indiana legislature, and declared that therein he would find some real progressive moves. He declared that Mr. Beveridge was a new convert to progressive principles, as the state had been making advancements for years. He declared that Beveridge had not been in the state long enough at a time during the past twelve years to know what progress had been made. As soon as the senate adjourned, Col. Durbin said, Beveridge would go abroad or spend his summers in the forests of Maine. As an illustration that progress had been made, he said that Mr. Beveridge had declared in several speeches recently that the people of Indiana were being robbed of large sums each year because of fraudulent corporations. Col. Durbin read from one of his messages to the Indiana Legislature where he had recommended that more stringent laws be placed upon such corporations in order that the people might be protected. He said that Mr. Beveridge had stated that if elected there would be no bosses between him and the people. Col. Durbin asserted that any one who knew Beveridge would agree that this was a correct statement, as Beveridge wanted to be the whole boss. He said that two years ago Beveridge dictated the platform and the resolutions adopted at the republican state convention and that there was only one issue and that was Beveridge. He said that the people ruled two years ago and that when the votes were counted on November 5, Mr. Beveridge would find that the people had again spoken and that he would be delegated to a seat in private life. He emphasized the fact that the national campaign was between Wilson and Taft, and in the state the fight was between Ralston and Durbin.

Col. Durbin pointed out what the republican party had done for the veterans and read the pension plank of the progressive platform. It reads "We pledge ourselves to a wise and just policy of pensioning American soldiers and sailors and their

NO ARRESTS MADE IN MURDER CASE

Bloodhounds Lose The Trail of Men
Guilty of the Murder of The McQuaid Brothers.

LAPROBE IS FOUND BY GIRL

The Theory Upon Which the Officers
Are Working Has Not Been Made Public—Excitement High.

The officers and detectives who have been working on the double murder case in Jennings county have been unable to find a sufficient clew which would justify an arrest. The two men murdered were Charles and John McQuaid, brother, who resided about twenty miles east of Seymour. They were called from their home late Monday night upon the pretense of repairing an alleged broken vehicle and were killed just after they stepped from the door.

Bloodhounds belonging to Detective Robert Owens, of Bedford, were taken to the scene of the murder Tuesday afternoon and finally took up a trail across the meadow surrounding the house but lost the scent at a turn in the road about five miles south of the McQuaid home. It is believed that the guilty parties continued east on the pike. The dogs seemed to take up a trail to a farm house about five miles from the McQuaid home and made several circles around the barn. The officers, however, do not believe that this is the right trail.

It is reported that the men who are working on the case have at least one party under suspicion and that he does not live a great distance from the McQuaid home. Because of the conversation which took place between one of the murderers and Charles McQuaid, it is known that he was acquainted with the surroundings and also with the man personally. It is believed that the guilty parties drove to the McQuaid home in a buggy and hitched their horse in an abandoned barn about a half a mile away. After committing their awful deed, they ran to the barn, jumped into their rig and drove away. This morning a little girl living in that neighborhood found a lap robe along the road which the murderers are supposed to have taken and it is believed that this will be of assistance to the detectives in locating the parties. The robe was found some time Tuesday morning but the little girl failed to make a report of it.

The officers feel sure that the murderers came to the McQuaid home for the purpose of killing the brothers. They were careful to cut all the telephone wires north and south of the house so that it would be difficult to communicate with the officers when the crime was discovered.

It is supposed that the guilty parties intended to rob the house after killing the brothers. In a long distance telephone message to the Republican this morning it was stated that the McQuaid brothers sold some stock in Seymour a few days ago, and that the purchaser wanted to pay them in money. They objected to taking the cash and finally a check was given for the amount. It is

JURERS FOR NEXT COURT TERM DRAWN

Court Officers Are Getting Everything
Ready For the Opening of the Term Monday.

MORE NEW CASES ARE FILED

Injunction Filed Against the City of Seymour to Prevent Construction of Fourth Street Sewer.

County Clerk Willard Stout and other court officers are getting everything in readiness for the opening of the October term of the Jackson circuit court next Monday. The term promises to be a busy one as a large number of new cases have been filed during vacation. Several cases were continued from previous terms and will probably be tried during the next session of court.

The Travis Carter Company et al. have filed a complaint to enjoin the city of Seymour from constructing a sewer on West Fourth street, which under the specifications, would tap the sewer constructed by the plaintiffs on Ewing street. This is the sewer for which a number of property owners on East Fourth street filed a petition some time ago and which was granted by the council. The plaintiffs contend that the sewer on Ewing street was constructed for their own use and that in as much as the petitioners have not paid any part of said Ewing street sewer they would not be entitled to use it.

Other new cases filed are as follows:

Travis Carter Co. vs Robert Crawford and John Dorsey; on note.

Flossie E. Kaufman vs. Frank Kaufman; divorce.

Mary E. Williams vs. John B. Martin; easement.

The petit jury for the coming term of court is as follows:

George C. Rose, Salt Creek; John White, Brownstown; James A. Wayman, Brownstown; Oliver H. Lubker, Brownstown; Archie A. Rider, Vernon; Herman Buse, Washington; George Mitchell, Owen; John F. Steltenpohl, Washington; Edward Nieman, Brownstown; August Rittman, Jackson; Frank Teckemeyer, Jackson; Frank Hess, Hamilton; Patrick O'Connor, Jackson; Bert Dodds, Owen; and William C. Miller, Brownstown.

The names drawn by the commissioners for the grand jury are as follows:

Charles Roeger, Jackson; Harmon Holtman, Jackson; Howard Smith, Carr; John W. Hanner, Salt Creek; Ezra Scott, Owen, and Henry Mellenkamp, Washington.

The following business was transacted by the commissioners court:

David H. Hogg et al. Road Petition. To open road in Vernon Tp. Geo. Rotert, Harmon Redicker and John Kelly appointed viewers.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Party of Seymour Motorists In Accident Near Columbus.

An automobile party composed of Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips and daughter, Mary Beatrice, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pauley met with an accident this morning north of Columbus. They were on their way to Indianapolis in Mr. Phillip's machine.

Two miles north of Columbus they ran into some heavy sand caused by the repair of the road, and the car skidded to the side of the road. The wheels on one side of the machine went into a ditch and the car was overturned. The machine was considerably damaged in the accident.

Little Mary Beatrice was injured more than any of the others, although none of the party was seriously hurt. She received a badly injured eye, and for a time it was believed that the sight was gone. Mrs. Pauley suffered an injured arm and the other members of the party were shaken up by the fall. They returned here about noon on the interurban.

STRANGER ARRESTED

Believed to be Guilty of Stealing Revolver and Money.

A boy about seventeen years of age and giving his name as Harry Baster, was arrested by the police Tuesday evening and a charge of carrying concealed weapons, was placed against him. While he is laying out his fine and costs at Brownstown, however, a belief that he is guilty of theft will be investigated.

When asked by the officers where he lived he said that his home was in the south part of the city, but upon further inquiry it was found that he was trying to mislead the police. He was taken to the jail and when searched, a new revolver and two one dollar bills of 1896 issue were found upon him. He also had a new pocket-book. He told several stories and all of them were different. He said he lived in Indianapolis, but could not tell the name of the street at first, but finally declared his home was on Buchanan street. He said he bought the money from a negro in Cincinnati for fifty cents. The police believe that he has stolen the revolver and purse and may hear from the owner before his jail sentence expires.

RACE TRACK SUIT HAS BEEN FILED

Attorney-General Honan Files Injunction to Prohibit Gambling at Porter, Ind.

HAS LONG BEEN EXPECTED

Sensational Charges Made in Complaint Against Nine Residents in Northern Part of State.

Indianapolis, October 9.—The long awaited suit of the state of Indiana against the promoters of the new race track near Porter, Ind., for an injunction was filed before Judge McMahon, of the Lake-Porter circuit court, by Edwin C. Corr, a deputy in the office of Attorney-General Honan.

Sensational charges against nine residents of northern Indiana cities, among them Mayor Lemuel Darrow, of Laporte, and a South Dakota man, are contained in the complaint of the state against the promoters.

The racing at the Porter track was to have begun next Saturday. Evidence was collected at the instigation of Governor Marshall by the attorney-general that the track was to be used as a means of bookmaking and pool selling by means of "revised methods," which were intended to evade the gambling laws of Indiana.

Chicago gamblers were said to have been the parties most interested in the success of the meeting.

The complaint alleges that the board of directors of the racing corporation, except one—Seabee, a resident of South Dakota—are citizens of Indiana, and that the corporation has its main business office in the city of Gary, Lake County, Ind.

The complaint asserts that "said corporation has never at any time made application to the secretary of state of Indiana for the purpose of transacting business or exercising its corporate powers of franchise," and that "all business done or attempted to be done, or proposed to be done by said corporation, is in violation of the laws of the state of Indiana, which require such certificates of a foreign corporation doing business in this state."

Miss Nellie Crane Dead.

Miss Nellie Crane died this afternoon at her home on South Walnut street after an illness of several weeks. She was born in Seymour and was the daughter of Mrs. Allen Crane. Her father died several years ago. She was thirty-seven years of age. She is survived by her mother and three brothers. The funeral arrangements had not been completed.

Child Dead.

Cora, the two weeks' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shumbaek, died this afternoon at the home on East High street. Funeral at 2:30 Thursday afternoon at residence.

The Brookville Bridge Company expects to establish a branch office in Seymour from which place it will take care of its business in southern Indiana. This company was awarded the contract for the construction of the bridge at Mt. Sidney across the Smart ditch.

HANDY FOR THE TRAVELERS

Probably Most Convenient Pin Cushion That Has Yet Been Brought Into Common Use.

A pin cushion that lends itself to the needs of the traveler is a combination affair of cushion and jewel box. The leather frame is green, red or drab blue, is octagonal in shape, with a heavily padded cushion top covered with velvet.

This top fits so tightly into the lower part that none but the initiated guesses at the double function of the box. This makes it a safe hiding place for trinkets.

An ingenious girl has copied one of the combination cushions by using a fancy candy box, six inches in diameter and two inches high. She padded the top with wool, covered it with pink chiffon velvet the tone of the flowers in the gaily stamped border and finished the edge with a narrow silver braid.

Instead of using the bottom for jewelry, she turned it into a collar box. The dimensions enable her to carry more than a dozen collars without crushing.

BLOUSE.

Almost any blouse material might be made up in this simple style; pin tucks in sets of threes are made across the front and in center back, and one wide tuck is carried over the shoulder to waist front and back. The collar is hemstitched at the edge, and the wristbands are finely tucked in the center. Collar and small yoke of spotted muslin.

Materials required: 3 yards 27 inches wide, 1/4 yard muslin.

Begin With a New Hat.

"A new hat I must have," says the average woman each season, and a new hat she does have, even if she has to go without some of the necessities to get it. Now this may seem foolish to some, but in reality it is very wise. With a becoming hat, fresh and up-to-date, even though it is accompanied by an old suit, provided it is neat and trim, a woman passes as stylish and well dressed. Let her appear, on the other hand, in a new suit, with an old hat, dejected and hopelessly out of fashion, and she is immediately referred to as way behind the times. And so it is that the woman who is wise in dress matters begins each new season with a new hat.—Woman's Home Companion.

Good Parisian Idea.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

The most telling charm a girl can have is a sweet voice, and yet how often, alas, is the quality of the voice utterly ignored by young people. One hears the terrible twang indigenous to this country issuing from kissable coral lips, hears maids in the finest raiment speaking with the hoarseness of ravens or with voices as badly managed as those of monkeys. Yet there are elocutionists for training the voice to honeyed notes, and the owner of the dulcet voice is a power in every circle of society. For although the voice is the easiest of all the points of woman's beauty to train into ways of loveliness it generally happens that the low, exquisitely-timbered and beautifully used voice goes with the superior nature.

The deaf speak discordantly because they cannot hear the manner in which they are pitching their voices. So hearing is needed for voice training, and it is possible to cultivate its sensitiveness with very simple home methods. Listen, to all the beautifully-pitched voices that come your way and then go into your room and practice with the contrast of your own naturally speaking voice. You will see your mistakes in short order, and by keeping the error in mind, as important to your charm, you will soon find yourself imitating the lovely voice, first copying the manner in which single words are uttered and then essaying some whole phrase caught up from the voice melodious. Little by little you will get the right inflections, and then somehow you will grasp at last the spiritual side of human speech. The feeling of words will appear and you will utter them in the right manner, telling your fairy tale with the right touch of gaiety and your tale of sorrow with due solemnity.

According to voice specialists, the commonest defect in young people is the pitching of the voice too high, and this is accompanied by a nervous tension which holds the throat taut and strained. The breath is short and hurried, which cuts the overtones and destroys the vibrations. So the high pitch must first be overcome, and since reserve breath and a wholesome state of the throat and nose are needed these organs and the lungs must receive their due share of attention. The simplest breathing exercises, taken quite twice a day in a full and rhythmic manner, will undoubtedly improve a defective voice through the help the exercise lends to the vocal cords. Deep breathing, too, is often advised for bashfulness and stammering, those two great bane of timid youth, which if not overcome in time will sometimes last until life's end.

For the girl whose general health is none of the best, and whose voice soon wears out with class recitations, a diet of molasses and coarse bread is to be recommended. Sweet milk and buttermilk will also be of much benefit, while a raw egg, beaten up with a little lemon juice, and taken before breakfast is almost certain to ward off hoarseness during the day. Raw eggs are very healing and feeding to the throat and lungs, and should be given far oftener to undernourished young people, whose very delicacy makes them ready victims to lung and throat diseases.

Anything which interferes with the general health will affect the beauty and strength of the voice, and since the membrane of throat and nose is so delicate it must always be given immediate care in time of trouble—or, better still, be kept in a healthy state with the frequent use of antiseptic washes.

But a lot of the ugliness in youthful voices comes from bad habits alone. The young people are not corrected for their vocal errors in time, they are allowed to sing at too early an age, they sleep and sit in rooms too hot and dry, they have the example of other badly-trained children, or get the habit from their tone-deaf elders. But it is never too late for the girl who has been neglected in this way to improve herself if she will only realize that a sweet, well-modulated voice is one of woman's greatest fascinations and that all her success in its attainment lies in herself.

New Ruffles.

Many new ruffles have appeared this spring. Foremost as a novelty is a soft taffeta in shot colorings, edged all around with a broad frayed-out ruche of the silk, and another has a taffeta center and a soft marabout edging.

The neck ruche—or ruffle—now goes quite closely round, and is charming in ostrich feathers, just slightly curled, and the most amenable colors are black and white, ivory or gray—the latter mixed with white or in some pale self tone.

A neck ruffle with ostrich feathers with triple ends finished with tassels, is effective when thrown over the shoulder, and the broad ruche of marabout mounted on soft satin is not only becoming but of real utility.

Social Forms and Entertainments

From a Masculine Reader.

I, as a young man, have found many helpful suggestions in your space in the paper, so I ask your help now.

I have a birthday about the middle of the month and would like to have a few friends in. Would this be proper for a young man to do?

What would you place on the invitations?

What would you serve that would not make too much work?

What could we do for amusement, as they do not allow card playing at home and there is not enough room to dance?—Art.

It is good to know that we have readers among the men in our big family; it makes us feel really worth while. It will be perfectly proper for you to entertain on your birthday, and I think, as such affairs should be very informal, that I would just 'phone the invitations or ask the friends when I saw them. All you need have at an evening party will be ice cream and a birthday cake. I am sorry you cannot have either card playing or dancing, as both are such satisfactory means of entertaining. I fear you will have to rely on guessing contests or some of the schemes that I have in the paper each week.

New Games Requested.

A crowd of children, ages from twelve to fifteen, "play out," as we call it, nearly every night at different homes, and our favorite game was "clay in and clay out," but now we are tired of that, and wish you would kindly publish some new games.—J. B. S.

When I was your age our great game was "Hide And Go Seek" and "I Spy." Do not tell any one, but a party of grown-up children played these self-same games not long ago out in the moonlight. Of course one of the real children was having a birthday party, and to celebrate the achievement of nine "long" years the entire family, including parents, uncles and aunts, joined in the after-supper pastimes. It was the dignified college professor who proposed "Hide and Seek," and a jolly game it was. I am sure I do not need to tell any of you how to play it.

To a "Faithful Reader."

A man should take care of his own hat, laying it on the table or hat rack. Just say, "I enjoyed the dance very much;" its hardly fair to deprive a man of a dance, so explain to him and tell him to fill his program for that number. I do not approve of couples leaving by themselves and going other places during a dance. I cannot tell you how to keep up your correspondence if the young man does not care to write. It is not necessary to shake hands with everyone; a hostess usually does in her own house. It is polite to rise when guests enter the room. You know I am old fashioned, I do not like a young couple to go off on long jaunts by themselves. Neither do I approve of "touching hands." You will never be sorry for not doing these things.

Impossible to Say.

Kindly tell me the best cook book in use. I have several, but fail to find so many things in them.—H. M. D.

There are so many good books, it is impossible to make a choice, even if I were permitted to give names and addresses here; as I am not, will you kindly send me a self-addressed stamped envelope, in care of the paper?

Reply to an "Orphan Blonde."

You certainly did right in calling your aunt, and I hope you will never go with that boy again. He acted most ungentlemanly. A girl of fourteen or younger, as you say you are, has no occasion to be out so late or to have beaux (as you call them). It is plain that the boy you mention does not know how to act.

The Party Call.

I would like to know how soon after a wedding ceremony or reception, luncheon or party should one return a call?—M. H. T.

Ceremonious decrees of older days decreed that "party" calls should be made within two weeks after the event, but in this busy age within a month will do.

"Faith's" Answers.

By all means ride horseback and use any saddle you choose personally.

You have gotten your growth early; large people, somehow, are taken for older than they are, especially young girls.

Your dresses should be a bit below your shoe tops. Come again. MADAME MERRI.

STYLES FOR THE ELDERLY

Once More Modistes and Designers Appear to Recognize Their Claims to Some Thought.

Is it possible that elderly ladies and matrons are coming into fashion again and that staid mammas need no longer preen themselves in the gay feathers of lately escaped nestlings? Certain details of the fashion point in this direction, and among these I need only indicate the trailing gown, the small toque, the mantle coat and the popular lace wrap, all of which make for at least an appearance of maturity which is something quite different from the young girl airs of a recent time.

Now, of course, most women of 40 regard themselves as quite young and sportive creatures, but there has always been an exception to this frisky rule, and some of them have never cared for "going out in their figure," as it so expressively phrased. In summer, however, it has always been admittedly difficult to find anything to wear that was loose and cool without being dowdy.

Some of the new wraps seem at least to be just what we have been looking for and to take the place with older women of the ruffles which in reality are only suited to the youthful wearer. Little fichus of black lace are edged with a ruffle of silk and a flounce of kilted chiffon with a ribbon finish, and these give a decorative finish to a gown. A simple fichu of fine silk lace is bordered with satin and fringed on the lower end, a chou and loops of ribbon catching it in front.

Some of the capes have deep stole ends in front and others affect the form of the bolero. Mostly of chintilly or lace, there are others which are more practical and are made of face cloth arranged to fall full over the shoulders and pointed toward the waist at the back, while the fronts also meet in a point.

Make Smelling Salts.

Smelling salts can be made at home, or, if one has already purchased a bottle, the strength can be kept up and so make the salts last much longer. To prepare a salts bottle, put in carbonate of ammonia, adding one part of any desired perfume to eight of the carbonate of ammonia.

Another method is to put into a wide mouthed glass stoppered bottle small bits of fine sponge, fill with common liquid ammonia, adding a few drops of any perfume desired. As the bits of sponge dry they can be moistened time and again.

Lemons for the Face.

A few drops of lemon juice in the water in which the face is washed removes all greasiness and leaves the skin fresh and satiny, as well as making it fairer and clearer. A little lemon juice rubbed over the cheeks before retiring and allowed to dry will remove summer freckles and whiten the skin, and, if persisted in, will eventually carry off all blemishes of the complexion that are not caused by impure blood or other internal trouble.

FADS.

Some new upright collars taper to points behind the ears. Never were there so many white shoes, or so many kinds.

A great use of lace is now the feature in lingerie gowns. Colored parasols with wide borders of black velvet are smart.

Plain shoulder cape fichus on coats are often of light-toned silk.

The popular combination for street wear is blue and cafe-au-lait. Streamers are added to some of the big bows set at the back of large hats.

Bordered chiffon and marquisette are used for many lovely dance frocks.

The present tendency is for big hats to grow bigger and small hats smaller.

Amber has for the time being given place to the modern vogue for cut-jet beads.

SASH ARRANGEMENT.

The clever lines and odd sash arrangement mark this little pink linen frock for a child as Parisian. The frock is scalloped by hand at the neck and sleeve edges and fastens along one shoulder with pearl buttons. The black silk sash passes through slashes at the front of the waist and may be drawn out when the frock is laundered.

The Butterfly Craze.

There is at present a craze for butterfly effects. The design flutters on parasol tops, on smart veillings, and is worked in wonderful, iridescent effects on the new trimmings. The winged favorite is used also as shoe buckles, brooches, coiffure ornaments and beautiful designs are seen in enamels and simul diamonds. Black satin and velvet butterfly bows edged with brilliants or colored stones are lively. The material is slipped into a frame, and thus any color can be added to the diamond's rimmed bow.

Dynamiters Said to Have Marked It for Destruction.

THOUGHT IT A GOOD JOKE

In Continuing His Presentment of the Government's Case District Attorney Miller Charges That Iron Workers Looked Over the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul at Indianapolis With a View to Destroying It.

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—When an iron worker offered J. J. McNamara "enough dynamite and nitroglycerine to blow the Catholic cathedral on North Meridian street to hell," Eugene A. Clancy, the California labor leader, laughed heartily, according to a charge made by District Attorney Miller, prosecuting the dynamite case.

Clancy, from 1906 to 1911, was business agent for Iron Workers' local No. 28, San Francisco; vice president and member of the Iron Workers' international executive board; a member of the California district labor council and a member of the executive board of the California Building Trades council. Miller charges Clancy with being directly responsible for the Los Angeles Times explosion, the Llewellyn iron works explosion in the same city and the dynamiting of non-union work in Oakland, Cal., and Seattle, Wash., in 1910.

Miller said that in 1905, when Brown & Ketcham were constructing SS. Peter and Paul's cathedral on North Meridian street, Clancy, J. J. McNamara and another iron worker went up to the cathedral to look around. This is the alleged conversation there at the cathedral:

"Is this non-union work?" asked Clancy.

"If Brown & Ketcham make this a non-union job," said the unnamed iron worker to McNamara, "you send out to me and I'll send you enough oil and dynamite to blow her to hell."

Laughing heartily at this remark, Clancy said he wanted to go inside the cathedral and look around. Inside he looked across the alley and said:

"I just wanted to see how far these walls would be blown. I guess," here Clancy pointed to the residence of Attorney Ferdinand A. Winter just across the alley, "this wall would just about blow far enough to smash that house there."

Here Clancy laughed again and added:

"What a nice wreck it'll make."

The Indianapolis Outrages.

The indicted men alleged to have been connected with and responsible for the blowing up of Albert Von Spreckelsens garage, barn and planing mill and contract for the Central Union Telephone company in this city in 1909 were named by Prosecutor C. W. Miller Tuesday. They are: Fred Sherman, president of the iron workers' local in this city in 1909 and 1910; Herbert S. Hockin, secretary and treasurer of the iron workers; Herman G. W. Basye, Indianapolis; Spurgeon P. Meadows, Indianapolis; J. B. McNamara and Ortie E. McManigal. Miller says Sherman made threats against other non-union contractors in Indianapolis.

Next on District Attorney Miller's list of defendants in his opening statement comes Smiling Olaf—Olaf A. Tveitmore (pronounced Ta-wait-moe) of San Francisco, politician and member of the California State Federation of Labor. He is commonly referred to as "The Old Man."

"The Old Man" is a soft-spoken giant with a whimsical half-smile that plays about the thin mouth of his big, square face at the slightest provocation. He is the size and cut of man who stoops and goes in sideways at all ordinary doors. His massive frame is garbed in full-cut gray, with tan shoes and a Kentucky colonel's hat over eyes that give a suggestion of beadiness and mustache slightly drooped. He moves almost ponderously; wears kid gloves and in his waking hours grips a heavy crooked cane at the middle. His brow is broad, high and slightly sloping to bushy brows and heavily-lensed, old-fashioned spectacles.

The playful, half-cynical smile is the only indication that Tveitmore hears himself branded a blackguard by the district attorney. The smile was the only answer to Miller's statement that Tveitmore asked J. J. McNamara to blow up the Los Angeles Times "as a Christmas present to me." The smile is his eternal answer.

Legislative Committee Favors Centennial Library Building.

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—The report of the legislative committee of the Indiana Library association has been made public by Carl H. Millam, secretary of the Indiana Library commission. The recommendations are to be passed on at the annual meeting of the association at Terre Haute, Oct. 17-19. The report approves the plan for a centennial building, to house the state library and also "approves of the efforts of the state librarian to make of the state library a strong central reference collection of service to the whole state."

TIDE TURNS TO TAFT

ROOSEVELT FAILED TO GAIN VOTES FOR HIMSELF IN WESTERN STATES.

TAFT SENTIMENT INCREASING

Weakness of Third Term Candidate Has Been Emphasized by His Tour, While Favorable Feeling Toward Taft Manifested Everywhere.

Oswald F. Schuette, Staff correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean, has just completed a two weeks' tour of the Pacific coast and western states with J. Adam Bede, former congressman from Minnesota, and John M. Harlan of Chicago. These speakers were sent out by the national Republican committee to trail Colonel Roosevelt in his tour of the west. The Taft meetings were held on the nights following the Bull Moose rallies. Mr. Schuette was commissioned to make a critical study of political conditions and report the facts as he found them.

By OSWALD F. SCHUETTE.

The Roosevelt sentiment in the states west of the Mississippi river is waning fast. The Taft strength is growing, although weakness in the organization in many states has prevented the Republicans from taking full advantage of the situation. The Wilson forces are still confident of victory, but the fading of the Roosevelt strength has turned the brunt of the fight against the Democrats, and fear of free trade and Democratic hard times is turning the tide to President Taft.

This is the present situation, as viewed from a careful personal investigation of the political conditions that prevail in the wake of Theodore Roosevelt's tour of the west. It can be summed up also in another sentence. Roosevelt has scarcely won a vote at any point on his trip. He has had large audiences, but none of them has been as large as he had on either of his last two trips through these states. Compared to last spring's primary campaign, or his tours of other years, the meetings have been disheartening in their coldness. This accounts for the reports of angry interludes that have been frequent accompaniments of his speeches. This represents a great change in the situation since the middle of August.

Gained No Converts.

What cheering and applause has greeted the colonel on his present tour has come from men already committed to his cause. In no city visited on his course has there been a report of new converts gained. In almost every instance the reports were unanimous that he had hurt himself and his cause either by his dictatorial manner toward his audiences, his angry treatment of the men around him and the hosts who tried to show him hospitality, his theatrical stage tricks, or his kaleidoscopic changes of opinion concerning the issues.

Weakness of Roosevelt Emphasized.

The weakness of the Roosevelt cause was emphasized by the meetings which greeted John Maynard Harlan and J. Adam Bede, who are still on the colonel's trail. At each stop they, made they were told by Republicans, Democrats and Rooseveltians alike that the Roosevelt meetings had been anything but the rousing successes they had been expected, and the colonel's visit had not won him a vote.

It was the same story throughout the trip—in Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Nebraska. Everywhere the Roosevelt leaders appeared disgruntled, the Taft leaders were jubilant and the Wilson forces fearful of the fact that the campaign was turning against their own candidate.

H. C. Dannettell, as agent, has sold the Garnet Saltmarsh residence on East Sixth street to August Lange. Mr. Lange will occupy the property.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

BEEF PIES.

ECONOMICAL methods of extending the meat flavor through other foods are found in meat pies and similar dishes in which a pastry, a cereal or a vegetable is combined with the meat.

A deep dish is the best thing in which to bake your meat pie. The dish may be lined with a biscuit or shortened pastry dough.

Sometimes the pie is covered with a potato crust. Then no lining is used.

Cold beef cut up into small pieces is generally put into these pies, although fresh meat may be used provided the pie is cooked a little longer. In such cases it is wise to cover the top of the baking dish with a plate until the pie is nearly done. Then remove the plate and allow the upper crust to brown.

Baked in a Casserole Dish.

Beef Pie.—Take one and a half pounds of beef from the flank, one large quart of potatoes cut in small cubes, two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, one pint of water, salt and pepper to taste, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Cut the beef in small pieces, mix with the other ingredients, put in a covered casserole dish and set in a moderate oven for an hour. At the end of that time mix a pint of flour with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, salt and a tablespoonful of shortening, proceeding as for biscuit, add three-fourths of a cupful of milk or water and stir quickly. Roll out to the size of the dish in the oven, remove the cover, place dough on top of the meat, cook for fifteen minutes, then cover again and cook fifteen minutes.

Individual Pastries.

Beef Turnovers.—Biscuit dough should be rolled thin and cut into circles. Then the chopped beef mixed with cold boiled rice or chopped potatoes and onions should be placed inside the circles. The filling should be seasoned with salt, pepper and a little gravy. The edges of the pastry should be moistened with white of egg and folded over, then pinched together. The tops of the turnovers may be brushed with yolk of egg before putting them into the oven. About a half hour in a hot oven is long enough to bake these. They should be served with a brown sauce or gravy.

A Meat and Vegetable Pie.

Beef and Tomato Pie.—Either fresh or canned tomatoes may be used for this. If raw, peel and slice them; if canned, pour off the juice. Put a layer of the tomatoes in the baking dish, then a layer of sliced or cut up meat. Dredge with flour, salt and pepper and so continue until the dish is full. Cover with a layer of pastry dough or bread or cracker crumbs. Bake the pie half an hour in a hot oven.

Anna Thompson

Almost a Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind. Advertisement.

Roosevelt Weak in Utah.

A prominent newspaper editor in Ogden, Utah, writes to the Republican national committee as follows: "There is no doubt that Mr. Taft will carry Utah by almost the same majority he did four years ago. The movement for Roosevelt is very weak."

Dwindling in Missouri.

Fred A. Williams, secretary of the Republican central committee of Callaway county, Missouri, makes the following report: "What little Moose sentiment we have here is dwindling and everything is shaping up well for Mr. Taft in November."

It Looks Like A Crime

to separate a boy from a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. His pimples, boils, scratches, knocks, sprains and bruises demand it, and its quick relief for burns, scalds, or cuts is his right. Keep it handy for boys, also girls. Heals everything healable and does it quick. Unequaled for piles. Only 25 cents at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind. Advertisement.

In spite of all the Democratic efforts to stop it prosperity is climbing the grade with a double-header and a push engine. Give it but half a chance and it may once more make a record-breaking run.

They strewed the third-termers' path with roses in Oregon, but he seems to have struck a trail studded with tacks in Idaho.

If you have Republican Advertising on your mind, you're right.

SORE THROAT

TONSILINE We think this name a happy one. It almost tells its own story. You at once think of the tonsils. They are the most sensitive part of the throat. Throat troubles generally start with the tonsils, hence the name of our throat remedy—TONSILINE.

THE THROAT It is the gateway to the body. The air we breathe, the food we eat, and the water we drink, all pass through it. If this passageway is poisoned or diseased or infected with germs, the entire body soon absorbs the contagion. The slightest ailment of the throat is a danger signal. Think of it and you will realize that this is the commonest kind of common sense.

SORE THROAT Too many people imagine that a Sore Throat is only a simple little ailment. They think that it is something that comes today and is gone tomorrow. They neglect it. They put it off, thinking every day that it will be better tomorrow. Many a sad mistake has been made in this way. A Sore Throat is never a little ailment.

If every mother could realize the real danger that lurks behind every case of Sore Throat, she wouldn't rest until she had effected a cure every time a child has it. Your family physician will tell you it is a positive fact that every child with Sore Throat is in real danger of contracting Croup, Quinsy, Tonsillitis or Diphtheria and is not removed from that danger until the throat is cured. Sore Throat is a specific and well defined disease. It is the most common throat disease. That is why Tonsiline is specially prepared as a Sore Throat Cure. That is why nearly all our talks are about Sore Throat and the fact that Tonsiline cures it so surely and quickly.

New York, Oct. 9.—Prince Pignatelli D'Arango, who has recently languished on Ellis Island while the special board of inquiry sat on his desirability as an immigrant, was allowed to leave the island after the immigration authorities had received a cable dispatch from the American embassy in Paris touching on the salient features of the prince's case. The prince was taken on Commissioner of Immigration Williams' launch to Pier A, North River, and set free on American soil to do as he might wish.

WILSON AND THE TRUSTS.

[Indianapolis Sun—(Bull Moose).]

The secret is out. Woodrow Wilson does not want to regulate the trusts. He wants to "put them on their mettle." He told a crowd of Princeton students that just before going to the polls to vote in the New Jersey primary.

He also wants "to see that the trusts can't put anybody out of business except by doing business better than anybody else." He should know that the trusts have reached a point in organization, economy and efficiency by which they can put their competitors out of business by doing it "better than anybody else," and by that alone.

The professor does not "want to squeeze water out of their stocks." Far be it from him to do anything practicable. He wants "to put the water in a tank on their backs and see if they can carry that water as against the men who are doing business without any water to carry." The professor neglected to say by what process he would transfer the water from lithographed stock certificates to the backs of the stockholders. Also, he forgot to explain how he would meet the opposition of the thousands of stockholders who hold the water for value and who may be depended upon to resist any artifice to increase the poignancy of their grief incident to the discovered fiction in values of the aforesaid stock.

Prof. Wilson expects the trusts either "will break under the strain" or "get rid of the water themselves under competition."

Let the professor go on expecting it. It is not material what he expects. He is going to restore competition by breaking up the trusts and he is going to break up the trusts by restoring competition. By restoring competition, he is going to make it difficult for trusts to carry watered stock and when trusts no longer carry watered stock he will have restored competition.

Was ever dog or cat more completely lost in chasing his tail than Prof. Wilson? Was ever man more thoroughly involved in following the circumference of a circle than the New Jersey schoolmaster, in his logic?

OLD SOLDIERS' DUTY.

"The other leading questions of these years were the granting of pensions and the regulation of immigration. Congress has hastened from one layish vote to another in providing pensions for the old soldiers who had fought in the Civil war until at length generosity has passed into folly."

The above is reprinted for the benefit of old soldiers—federal survivors of the war of the rebellion. It is from the pen of a man who is now asking the greatest gift the American people can bestow. It was penned by Woodrow Wilson, the present democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States. The quotation is entirely authentic and anyone interested can find the original in Woodrow Wilson's book, "Epochs of American History—Division and Reunion," on page 297.

Of course, occupying the position he does at this time Woodrow Wilson would not write such sentiment; neither would he have written it in his book at that time had he realized that in 1912 he would be the democracy's candidate for the presidency. Unless, indeed, he might have imagined that the publication of such sentiment would bring the pension system into disrepute; that his antagonism would start an agitation that would ultimately bring about the repeal of all pension laws and that no federal soldiers thereafter would be paid a cent pension by the government his efforts had helped to preserve. If this was the idea of Woodrow Wilson when he wrote into his book that Congress was lavishing pensions on old soldiers until "generosity has passed into folly," he was greatly mistaken and has lived to realize his mistake. No true patriot of this country begrudges the pittance that is paid out in quarterly dribs to the remnant of the grandest army that ever stood between their government and its enemies; that suffered the tortures of the damned in rebel prison pens, in hospitals, under fire in the trenches or on forced marches to southern battlefields—those who have a spark of gratitude or patriotism in them do not agree with Woodrow Wilson that pensions to Union soldiers have become so generous that the generosity has passed into folly.

Surviving old soldiers who are drawing pensions which Woodrow Wilson characterizes as generous will recall that every piece of pension legislation under which pensions have been in the past or are now issued, was originated by some republican member of Congress and passed by republican votes, this too, in the face of democratic and rebel opposition, and this man Wilson, had he been in Congress at the time, as evidenced by the above extract from his book, would have worked and voted against increasing pensions, and you, Mr. Pensioner, be you republican, democrat or what not in politics, would have had your pittance cut down to the lowest limit or eliminated entirely. And now this man asks you to vote for him—asks you to put him in a position where his influence could be exerted against the pension system of the United States to greater effect than by writing his ideas into a book! As President he could veto any pension bill that slipped through Congress despite his opposition and you would be helpless. You, each of you, know best your personal situation. Some of you could get along without the small pension the government pays you, but maybe others of you could not, and being deprived of your pension would be a positive hardship or a calamity. You owe it to yourselves to guard against such a possibility.

If you vote for Woodrow Wilson you vote for a man who is antagonistic to your interests. The proof is positive. If you vote for Roosevelt your vote is against the republican party—the party that has uniformly been favorable to liberal pensions—as liberal as the opposition would permit, because such a vote approximates a half vote for Wilson—especially if cast by a former republican.

You must realize that there is no possibility that Roosevelt will be elected President and that every vote cast for him is not only against President Taft, but helpful to Wilson to that degree. If President Taft is not re-elected Woodrow Wilson will be the next President of the United States. There is no way to dodge that certainty. If you want to take a chance with Woodrow Wilson on the pension question vote for him direct; if you want the present pension system maintained and extended do not make a mistake in casting your ballot. Vote the way you shot. Perhaps ever since the war you have been voting the republican ticket and don't you think this an inopportune time to change a habit of a life time, practically, and for no valid reason. Stay with the old party that has stayed with you.

Remember your experience during the Cleveland administration, which put sleuths on your trail to discover whether or not you were drawing more pension than your disability called for. Maybe you were one of those whose pension was reduced arbitrarily upon the unsupported report of the Cleveland hirelings; maybe it was stopped on the same authority on the theory that you were entitled to no pension whatever. You know how the Cleveland administration treated you and your comrades. You know that the man who went fishing on Decoration day had no love for the old soldier. You have experienced all this and know of your own knowledge.

How much better treatment could you expect of the man who wrote the paragraph at the beginning of this article? It would be unsafe to your interest should such a man be elevated to the presidency.

President Taft is your friend. You will jeopardize no interest by voting for him for president.—Columbus Republican.

There was a good representation of republicans from all parts of the county at the Durbin meeting Tuesday night. The visitors were well pleased with the address and a number of them were heard to remark that they were "satisfied, contented and prosperous."

Finest neighbors in the world—all well-to-do folks. I want $40 an acre. (Some farms no better sold for $50.) That is the least dollar that will buy it. That is $12,800 and I want all cash. ### NO ARRESTS MADE IN MURDER CASE rumored that this transaction may have an important bearing upon the case as the guilty parties may have heard of the sale, and knowing that the McQuaids were not patrons of any bank thought that the money was in the house. The officers are keeping their movements a secret and the public has not been informed upon what theory they are working.

The sister of the murdered brothers is an invalid, but when she heard the shots and the cries of her brothers she managed to creep to the door and scream for help. Her shout was heard by Web Spencer, who lives about 100 yards away and he shouted that he was coming. This evidently frightened the robbers away. Charles McQuaid was able to crawl into the house before Spencer arrived, but was not able to give any description of the men.

A revolver pouch was found by the officers near a telephone pole which one of the murderers climbed to cut the telephone wires. A bloody cap was also discovered near the McQuaid home. There is much excitement in the neighborhood and threats have been made in the case the guilty parties are found.

Patent Laundry Table.

Ray R. Keach and Norman EuDaly have formed a partnership to manufacture and sell a Laundry Table upon which Mr. EuDaly has applied for a patent in the United States and Dominion of Canada. The first lot of these tables are now being manufactured by the Carter Planing Mill for the above firm and today Keach and EuDaly will send out salesmen to dispose of their product which they feel sure will meet with ready sale. The table when not in use resembles and is used as an ordinary kitchen table. When opened ready for use, consists of large ironing board, sleeve board, clothes rack and drawer for irons, clothes, etc. The old style ironing board will readily be discarded when the ladies of the house see how much of an improvement this patented table is over them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Rider and daughter of Crothersville were here today and left this afternoon for Bloomington to visit relatives.

VANQUISHED DIVIDES HONORS

Though to Boston Went the Victory, Fairly and Squarely Won, the Defeat Reflected Credit on the Defeated, for in Losing the Giants Came Out of the Initial Game of World's Series With Their Portion of Praise.

At New York— R.H.T.
Boston.... 0 0 0 0 1 3 0 0—4 6 1
New York... 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 1—3 8 1

New York, Oct. 9.—The world's series in the polo grounds was ushered in by a baseball game which was splendidly fought. By a score of 4 to 3, the figures speaking eloquently and truly of the contest's closeness, the Red Sox of Boston came and conquered the Giants of New York, and to the Hub goes the first victory of the series.

It was a game well fought in the spirit of its sportsmanship and in its actual work on the field. It was cleanly won, cleanly lost. The credit of a victory fairly and squarely won by the Bostonians is paralleled by a defeat which reflects credit on the defeated, for in losing the Giants came out of the game with their portion of praise. The acute satisfaction of victory wasn't theirs, but whatever the future of the series may bring forth, the Giants proved themselves worthy of Boston's steel, and by the same token the men of Boston were such foemen as strong men delight to battle with.

As this opening engagement of the premier teams of the National and American leagues unfolded, it did not bring baseball that was the very best in mechanical excellence, although nicely played in the field and with both teams doing well with their opportunities at the bat. It did bring out a battle which was in doubt from first to last and evenly and stubbornly waged. Of superiority to an appreciable extent there was none one way or the other, individually or collectively. One told, concentrated foray with their touchdowns and the Bostonians had won. One bunching of hits and it was practically all the batting they did, and the game was theirs to have and to hold.

A grim, game rally by the Giants in the ninth inning had the multitude a-jingle with excitement, and among the giant rooters, hope.

There was both alarm, menace and glory for Joseph Wood, a pitching paragon in his own set, and the red hope of Boston, in this ninth inning rally. First gouging him for the three hits and putting one run over, two Giants then were hovering on the bases with one out. Another hit or the slightest break in the Boston defense, and one and perhaps two men would have dashed for the plate. The dash, alas, never came. Summoning all the speed he had and with a fatal twist of his supple wrist, Wood's smoke ball came through with such quivers and quivers that two Giants struck out and left two comrades fettered to the bags. This, the game's most dramatic moment, came as a climax.

Inning to inning the score fluctuated. The Giants held a lead of two runs to the sixth inning, then it dwindled to one. In the next inning, the period in which they mustered their hits and solved Tesreau for the first and only time, the Red Sox jumped to the front by two runs, and in the ninth that advantage was cut to one run. The Bostonians played a resolute, uphill game and won; the Giants made a gallant uphill fight to re-establish themselves. The effort failed, but it bespoke valor and class.

No one man stood forth pre-eminent in the encounter; no particular hero showed his head. The pitchers were uppermost, as in most world's series they dominate. The Giants outbatted the Red Sox in one sense. They made eight hits off Wood, which was two more than the Red Sox made off Tesreau and Crandall. They distributed their hits more freely throughout the game than the Red Sox, and were not at all terrified by Wood's speed and reputation.

New York's hitting, while numerically better than Boston did, was less effective because more scattered. The great strength, the telling factor, in Wood's pitching was not in keeping the Giants from hitting safely often, but at certain times in keeping them from hitting at all. Striking out men was how he scored and scored heavily. He took eleven men into camp by striking them out, and his greatest exhibition of skill in this line was at a time when it was most needed, with two men on bases in the ninth inning and one out. If he had it in him to keep men from hitting the ball at all, that was the time to do it. Six of the eight hits off Wood were clean. Five of the six hits made by the Sox were clean. That shows how even the battling was.

Official figures on the opening game: Total attendance, 35,730; total receipts, $75,127; national commission, $7,512.70; players get $40,568.58; managers get $27,045.72.

LOOKING TO POWERS TO AVERT BLOODSHED

Balkan War Not Expected to Get Very Far.

Constantinople, Oct. 9.—It is reported that Albanian troops under Risa Bey have raised the siege of Berana and invaded Montenegro. There is another report that Servians invaded Novi Bazar and engaged in desultory fighting with Turkish troops. Another action is reported between Bulgars and Turks, in which there were losses on both sides.

London, Oct. 9.—Summarizing a well informed view there as to why Montenegro declared war, a Constantinople correspondent of the Times says it is believed that the blow was dealt in behalf of the allies for the purpose of forcing the powers to define their attitude immediately. If they are determined to prevent war they must force Greece, Serbia and Bulgaria to demobilize forthwith and bring pressure on the porte to the utmost extreme to secure the immediate adoption of reforms. In that case the Turco-Montenegrin conflict, which would involve a relatively small number of Turks in a remote corner of the empire, would be rapidly brought to a close through the efforts of the powers without serious bloodshed and without disturbance of the status quo. The Turks, says the correspondent, are not in position to invade Montenegro, and the offensive activity of the Montenegrins must necessarily be confined to a few frontier districts. Should the powers delay or abandon intervention, then a Balkan war is inevitable. Official circles seem to expect a declaration of war by Serbia at once.

LOST NO TIME IN STARTING FIGHT

Montenegrin Army Attacks a Turkish Town.

WAR OFFICIALLY DECLARED

Old King Nicholas, Ruler of the Little Mountain State of Montenegro, Cuts Off Diplomatic Relations With Hereditary Foe and at Once Follows the Declaration of War by Precipitating Hostilities Near the Border.

London, Oct. 9.—Confirmation of a report that the Montenegrin army has attacked Berani, in Albania, a few miles north of the Montenegrin frontier, comes almost immediately following the announcement that Montenegro had declared war on Turkey. The town is said to be entirely surrounded by the Montenegrins, but other details are lacking. Rumors of skirmishing between the Turkish and Bulgarian outposts at Djumalala and between the Turks and Greeks at Diskalaku continue.

With the weakest of the states whose quarrel with Turkey has caused the diplomats of the European powers to plan united action to keep peace in the near east, declaring war on Turkey, and breaking off diplomatic negotiations independent of her allies, it is expected that Greece and the other states will follow her lead and join her in the war, but so far as the dispatches received here go, these other nations have as yet taken no warlike action.

The declaration of war was made on the seventy-first birthday of King Nicholas of Montenegro. The king handed the Turkish envoy his passports and at Constantinople M. Plamenatz, the Montenegrin charge d'affaires, presented this note to the porte:

"I regret that Montenegro has exhausted without avail all amicable means of settling the numerous misunderstandings and conflicts which have constantly arisen with the Ottoman empire.

"With the authorization of King Nicholas I, I have the honor to inform you that today the government of Montenegro ceases all relations with the Ottoman empire, leaving it to the arms of the Montenegrins to secure the recognition of their rights and the rights of their brothers in the Ottoman empire, which have been ignored for centuries.

"I am leaving Constantinople. The royal government will hand his passports to the Ottoman representative at Cetinje."

The ministers of the other Balkan states at Constantinople are hourly expecting instructions to leave the Turkish capital. Apparently the last hope of peace which the powers have been hoping might come through their efforts and through the reported willingness of Turkey to extend her reforms to all sections of the empire is destroyed. Doubt is expressed in some quarters, however, regarding the position which the other Balkan states will assume. While it is naturally to be expected that they will accept this opportunity of bringing on the war which so long has been impending, still it is pointed out that Montenegro has grievances of her own against Turkey which are not common to the other states, and which are not affected by the question of Macedonian reforms.

Should the unexpected come about and Greece, Serbia and Bulgaria decline to join Montenegro in a declaration of war, hostilities would not be likely to be serious to Turkey except as she assumed the offensive and invaded the mountain state. The Montenegrins have a fighting reputation when they can do their battling in their own mountains, and a guerilla warfare there would cost Turkey dear. Outside of their own country, the Montenegrins are too few in numbers to be dangerous to a power of the size of Turkey, unless the little state can get the help of her neighbors. That such a thing can happen as that she will be left to fight alone, seems very doubtful.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

HIS CREED.

Joe F. Sullivan of Imboden, Ark., is the youngest mayor in the world. He is not yet twenty-one years of age.

He was elected by the joint effort of twelve young girls, two goats—and Joe himself.

At the age of four the boy was stricken with paralysis, which lost him the use of his lower limbs. When he began going to school he was drawn there in a little wagon, which he made, by two Angora goats he had trained.

The goats also helped Joe sell papers, by which he supported his invalid mother and himself. When his father died Joe quit school and made a business of delivering papers.

After being out of school for some time the boy, unable to walk a step and weighing but ninety-five pounds, started in again. Although behind the others, he not only caught up, but won several scholarships and a gold medal for making the highest grades.

When he was through the town school Joe decided to run for mayor.

There were two other candidates, experienced politicians, and the people took the young man's candidacy as a joke.

With Joe it was no joke. He drove his goats to his speaking appointments and told the voters what he would do when he was mayor. Being an advocate of equal suffrage, he appointed a dozen of his schoolgirl friends as his campaign committee.

A stroke of genius! The girls canvassed the voters and made a strong plea for Joe. They told the young men they would "never speak to them again" if they did not vote for Sullivan.

He got more votes than both the other candidates.

Joe took over the reins of government and bids fair to guide it as successfully as he guides his goats. In fifteen minutes after he was sworn in he organized a cleanup crusade.

After two terms as mayor he says he will go to a university, complete his education and permanently enter politics.

Look out for Joe Sullivan!

Why? Because, with all his spectacular methods, he is right inside. Here is his creed:

"Faith, prayer and perseverance will never fail you if you are right, and you are already a failure if you are wrong." It is not mere moralizing to say that a boy of twenty whose creed thus senses the dynamic power of rightness will go far in life.

A FOOL AND HIS TIPS.

Five dollars and ten cents for tips during twenty-four hours spent in New York was how a man from the west figured it up. He was inclined to think it too much. It was. It was worse. Judging by his list it was sheer plumb folly, says the New York World. One or two samples will show the silliness of his system. He "felt compelled" to give the bellboy a quarter. Ice water was rewarded with a dime more. For having a night letter put into his hand he "coughed up" another ten cents. Twenty-five cents beside the charge for pressing trousers went to the valet. He gave $1 to the waiter for serving dinner for two. He left an extra ten cents every time he paid for a telephone call. He presented a dime to the page every time the latter brought him a visitor's card, and so on. This is the brand of fool who ruins hotel servants in New York and makes the tipping evil a thousand times worse than it need be. Of the tips noted above, not one was called for save that the waiter at dinner, and there 50 cents would have been more than liberal. In every other case a word of thanks was all that was necessary. Too many men slop over with their silver and dry up when it comes to simple civility. This western tip gusher spouted as much harm and foolishness as he could in the time allowed. We wish there were fewer of him.

There is a note of desperation in the resolution of the American Pharmaceutical association calling for the passage of laws to bring about the reformation of physicians' handwriting. Men resort to law only as a last resort. They risk the ill looks of neighbor and associate only if they must. Just why the medical flat should resemble the marks that water birds make in the mud is probably one of the secrets of the profession. Possibly it comes down from Hippocrates, who wrote in Greek. You have heard of the doctor whose proposal of marriage was taken by his lady-love for a prescription and sent to the drug store to be filled, says the Toledo Blade. And of that other doctor whose will was lost and not found until his widow, falling ill, presented the missing document to the pharmacist under the impression that it was a recipe for a cough sirup. The doctor's daily toil has to do with unraveling anatomical and physiological riddles. He squares his accounts with the world by himself writing riddles down on little squares of paper. As his practice increases, so his skill at formulating prescribable puzzle grows. He knows, as Sheridan knew, that easy writing's curst hard reading.

American habits and customs, especially American clothes, are apparently becoming fashionable among Germany's young men. Young Germany no longer contents itself with the sartorial products of the Fatherland, says the London Answers. The exaggerated university suits of American cut and manufacture please them better, and most of them are never more genuinely flattered than when they are mistaken for "Amerikaner." German clothiers have, in consequence, been obliged to lay in large stocks of American clothing to meet the growing demand.

England's new torpedo boat destroyers will be given names from Shakespeare and Scott. So, in the near future, we may expect to see "The Merry Wives of Windsor" engaging in battle, accompanied by "The Two Gentlemen of Verona," "The Lady of the Lake," and "The Antiquary." The war correspondent of the future probably will be chosen from among the book reviewers.

The statement that an American company mined 25,000 tons of coal in Spitzbergen last year is taken by the New York World to illustrate that "trade follows the explorers' flag also." If so, it follows it at a very respectful distance; since Spitzbergen was discovered over three centuries ago.

Now it is said American office girls are being imported by enterprising business firms in London because they are superior to the native article. Here is another American invasion to set off the British pyrotechnics of wrath.

A Chicago preacher says that women's styles today are an abomination to the Lord. This, however, will make little difference so long as they continue to be fashionable.

Medical sharps insist that hay fever attacks persons of marked intellectuality. Well, the rest of us have some compensation to be thankful for, at least.

A Los Angeles scientist makes the prediction that in 500 years all men will be bald. He has doubtless been experimenting with a hair restorer.

It is estimated that there are 3,000,000 cats in Chicago. But then only a few people in Chicago go to bed at night, anyway.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty cents and one dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Daily Republican.

The Oldest Blood Disease

The most ancient history furnishes evidence that mankind suffered with Contagious Blood Poison. The disease has come down through all the ages and is to-day, as it has ever been, a scourge and blight upon humanity. The symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison are the same as in its earliest history, but its cure has now become an accomplished fact, whereas, it was once considered an incurable infection. S. S. S. is an antidote for the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, and cures it in all its forms and stages. S. S. S., possessing both purifying and tonic properties routs out all the poison, and at the same time builds up the general health. A person who has been cured of Contagious Blood Poison by the use of S. S. S. need not fear a return of its symptoms at any future time. This great medicine checks the progress of the poison and gradually but surely all sores and eruptions heal, ulcerated mouth and throat pass away, the hair stops falling out, copper-colored splotches fade away, and when the blood is thoroughly purified no sign of the disease is left. CHAPTER X.

The First Big Robbery.

By the end of the week Lone Oak was like the old riddle: "House full, yard full." People were everywhere, and day by day new motors appeared with more. We presented the appearance of a modish, prosperous summer hotel, some of the guests all season, more only for a week.

His Grace arrived with a flourish, preceded by fifteen trunks, his secretary, his two valets, and the butler—the chauffeur brought him—and followed by a dozen newspaper men and photographers. And we all learned to bow and kowtow with the proper shade of deference due to a duke who could trace his ancestors back to the eleventh century.

I never so much regretted my lack of knowledge on "How to Behave to a Duke." I, myself, resolved to lay in books on the subject as soon as I could get to town, but all the other women went scurrying to novels about dukes. Lydia Abercrombie even memorized some bits of conversation. There was only one irreverent member of our household—Hap. He called his Grace "Old Sport" to his face and "His Nobs" behind his back and, with a young American's disdain of ceremony and gold lace, cordially despised him.

In the confusion attendant upon the arrival of so many and the continually shifting crowds, I simply couldn't remember everybody, and whether they were husbands and wives, or sisters and brothers; and so on through the combinations of relationship. I bought a little red note-book and jotted them all down—like the list you send to a grocer—and every night Laura would come in and go over it to see if I had everything correct. The entries were in alphabetical order after this fashion:

ABERCROMBIE—Mother, two daughters. Father week-ends and holidays. Millions and family. Mother thin; talk fat to her. Daughters both pretty; Lydia good tennis, bridge; Dorothy sings, looks good at piano. Father wants to be next governor.

AYER—Father, mother and Charlie. More millions and family. Father a corker, golf; mother stout, keep off; good bridge; Charlie a silly dear.

BLISS—(See Eligibles).

CUTLER—Widow; beautiful; most accomplished woman I ever met; excellent French, golf, good bridge; knew the duke abroad.

That was one page, and my notes covered twenty. I had the eligibles in a department of their own which I didn't turn over for Laura's inspection, because of some remarks I had entered in the line of my duty concerning her future. And an attractive list of girls, one of whom I was trying to settle upon for Hap in the line of my duty concerning his future. Two looked suitable for John Crowninshield, although I hadn't been engaged to settle his future. Jane Bliss, who was pretty and sensible—sounds like a paradox—and Lydia Abercrombie, who, next to Jo and Laura, was the dandiest girl I ever met; but he never looked twice at any woman in his life and was just a dear to all of them. It broke my heart to see him drifting.

I classed my golf fiends, bridge fiends, and so on, for quick consultation and studied it as hard as Jo ever did her Practical Economy. I seeped in so much about everything from everybody and everybody from everything that I was like a sponge—squeeze me and I'd spout social information. I began to be able to say casually, "Oh, sixty millions!" and ceased to think I was playing a part in a society play where there was a French duke in the cast. I whirled in the scheme of things, marveling every instant that I didn't fly off into the air from tangential impetus.

A continual house-party of thirty or more, made up of a few human beings, a great many snobs, and brilliantly topped off with a duke, was a stupendous thing. We rivalled Mrs. Henry Dykeman in the brilliancy of our entertainments, and the Hemmingways in the novelty of theirs. Our musicals were characteristic, our teas innovations. We instituted a cotillion Saturday nights from which it was a social crime to be absent. We glittered so we were besieged by more newspaper men and women, much to Mrs. Hazard's secret disgust, but we had to pay the penalty of the glitter. The public may not have been interested, but the newspapers thought our French duke was too important to be hidden.

The only thing left to us of our old order was that early tennis of mine with Hap. The first time we played o'clock, in our own little breakfast-room where only the actual family and myself were present. It was the best of the day, the only time when we could feel that our souls were our own—I know that's the way I felt about it. Afterward Hap would go in to town in the gray car to sell real estate and John Crowninshield to defend, if that's what a lawyer does.

Then Mrs. Hazard would call the cabinet to order—she was secretary of state—and we'd begin. She would grease the wheels of the establishment, sort out who was coming and who was going until the butterflies began to flutter out at noon, and I began on the golf course, getting the golfers on the golf course—sounds easy, but left to themselves the tennis players were just as apt to be on the golf course, and grumpy in consequence—arranging motor parties, with just the right people in a car, and getting bridge games going where the breeze was lively enough to keep cool and not lively enough to blow the cards away; filling in when anybody needed an extra in anything. Then I had to manipulate the crowd for a swim or a sail before we started in on the evening round.

Those were the ordinary days when there was no grand affair on hand. I couldn't have stood it if I hadn't had nerves of steel and the constitution of an ox. But always there was Mrs. Hazard holding in on that chuckle of hers, smiling approval. Sometimes she would take me in her fat arms and pat my hair and worry if I looked tired. She insisted on my having a maid, although I was used to doing things for myself, but I didn't always have time to turn around and pick up the gown I had taken off.

There was only one thing about my job I heartily disliked, and that was filling in at bridge with Natalie. We always lost, although I didn't do so badly when I played with any one else, John Crowninshield or Mrs. Cutler, while His Grace and I won so much together we were a scandal in the house. I was afraid of Natalie, that was it; afraid of her calm, droopy stare and her awful civility. If she had been rude to me once I don't think I should have cared half so much.

I began to live for the cotillions Saturday night. They brought down tardy husbands, eligibles, and a sprinkling of '09's, and I could sit back and rest while everybody danced. Hap was a dear to me then, and was quite willing to sit out his dances while he did the talking, making me forget that I was on the job.

We were leaning on the stone coping one evening, just outside the drawing-room where we always danced, looking up at the stars when the sound of a motor boat cut the air, and light siewed around the bend below us.

"That's Mr. Abbott," I told Hap. "Listen! I know the sound of his engine."

"Oh, it can't be," exclaimed Laura, coming out for a breath—the figure was over. "He wouldn't come here to-night because he had to work—a spurt for the finish, he said."

"But it is, dear," I insisted. "If you listen you can tell. Hear it?"

"Oh, I don't know the sound of one engine from another, Louie," she laughed. "Winthrop's working, or I shall tell him tomorrow what I think of him."

"Sounds like his boat, Laura," Hap said. "Hate to hand Winthrop one, but I think he's just taking a little trip on the quiet."

His Grace and Natalie joined us, and we listened again, but they frankly could not tell. I always thought that it shocked His Grace to think we could.

"Sure thing," insisted Hap. "He's going some, too."

Laura went back into the house with her head in the air and flirted outrageously with Benny Bliss all evening. I would have given anything not to have mentioned the silly boat.

The next morning the first thing that fairly jumped at us from the morning papers was this:

NORTH SHORE HOUSES ROBBED. Fashionable Folk in Panic—Money and Jewels Taken—Police Think Thieves Worked From Motor-Boat.

It meant nothing to us, particularly, except that the places robbed were near us. Some of the victims we knew—the Dykemans and Mrs. Loring—some we didn't. The story caused a mild stir at Lone Oak for a moment; then was swallowed up by more important things. On the spur of the moment everybody, except Natalie, decided to send in their jewels the next day to a safety deposit in town, but by afternoon the scare was over and everybody had decided differently.

"What's the use of having them to be locked up?" Mrs. Higginson demanded cheerfully. "We are always at the mercy of our maids. I've had my jewels twenty years, and they haven't been stolen yet. I think I can still take care of them."

"After all, the cotillions would lose their zip if we couldn't shine a little," Lydia Abercrombie declared. "Only Laura and Louie Codman look well without jewels. I don't believe it amounts to anything, anyhow. I've heard that Mrs. Henry Dykeman has a press agent. Have you?"

I tried to put it from my mind, but it would come back. I was so very sure of the sound of that motor-boat; I would have been sure even if Hap hadn't agreed with me. And something else: I had heard it again in the early morning, returning. I had jumped up and looked out. I could see the rays of the headlight turned in the other direction. I even looked at my clock to see the time—three o'clock. For no particular reason, too, I recalled something Winthrop had said: "I can outrun anything on this shore."

I was angry at myself for connecting that in any way with the silly robbery, or even allowing my thoughts to slip back to that lost bracelet of Natalie's on the night of the reception in town, and what Laura had told me of those other losses.

Winthrop appeared Sunday afternoon, looking somewhat fagged, with pieces of crumpled copy paper sticking from the pockets of a khaki suit. Laura abruptly left Benny Bliss, who was really too giddy from her preference the night before, and frankly went to meet him. She turned him over to me while she sent for Hap and John Crowninshield to join him in a Scotch and soda. Poor fellow, he looked as if he needed a brace.

"How is your bomin?" she asked, choosing to forget that he had disappeared the night before.

pointed her the night before. "Just as naughty as ever?"

"Worse," he replied, smiling and rubbing the back of his head. "She simply won't behave as she should. I had a terrible time with her last night. I haven't been to bed; sat up all night with her."

"Winthrop! Really! You'll ruin your health. No book is worth it."

"Oh, yes it is. And this is a best-seller. You see, all the ingredients are there—villains, trusting heroines, hero with the awful curse of drink in his system; but sometimes it won't go right."

I laughed and Laura gave him a smile.

"I'd rather you were not so flippant about it," she said. "I'd rather think that you were writing what you felt and believed."

"Oh, in that case," he replied, rumpling his hair again. "I wouldn't write at all. I'd grow vegetables."

Later I was alone with Winthrop. "I heard your boat last night," I said to him. "Why didn't you land here for a minute?"

"I was in a rotten humor," he answered. "Got my naughty heroine where I didn't know what she would do next, and I took a spin to brush away the cobwebs."

"It must have been a good long spin," I dared. "I heard you coming back at three o'clock."

"Went to Boston," he admitted, "and loafed back. The sea was like glass. Gorgeous old night, wasn't it?"

I nodded, and as soon as I could get away I ran up to my sitting-room and stood looking out toward the ocean, but not seeing it. My heart was thumping, but it may have been from taking the stairs in such a hurry. Two thoughts persisted in my mind—those robberies, and the fact that I had been right about the boat; he hadn't denied it. I took a deep breath that was almost a sigh. It was a silly bit of circumstantial evidence, and I refused to believe it.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

Sage and Sulphur Remedy For Dandruff, Faded and Gray Hair.

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark, glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Wyeth Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh, faded hair, when a simple harmless remedy will bring back the color in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hairs. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and beauty to your hair.

TRUTH TRIUMPHS

Seymour Citizens Testify For the Public Benefit.

A truthful statement of a Seymour citizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use a tested kidney medicine.

A Seymour citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?

Mrs. W. Abbott, 23 W. Brown St., Seymour, Ind., says: "I do not know what I would have done without Doan's Kidney Pills. My back was lame and sore and often I could not get around. The secretions from my kidneys bothered me. I had read and heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I finally gave them a trial, and the results of their use surprised me. Three boxes made me well. I still use Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally and recommend them just as highly as I did in 1910 when I gave them my first public testimonial. You may continue to use my former statement."

WHAT IT COST TAFT TO GET NOMINATION

Mr. McKinley Testifies Before Senate Committee.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The manager of President Taft's pre-convention campaign, Congressman William McKinley of Illinois, told the senate committee that $265,000 was used in that contest through the Washington headquarters. The manager explained that the Washington office had no communicative interest with the many local state organizations that were working for the president. Mr. McKinley said he had no knowledge of the amount of money raised and expended by any state organization except in Illinois, where the total was approximately $25,000.

The expenditures thus far disclosed in behalf of Roosevelt in the pre-convention campaign aggregate about $425,000, but this total included the expenditures by local committees in Pennsylvania and New York. The total expenditures made by the central Roosevelt organization totaled about $217,000, compared with $265,000 by the corresponding Taft organization.

Clears Up the Mystery.

Wayne MacVeagh of Philadelphia, former attorney general, told the committee that it was Hamilton McK. Twombly of the New York Central railroad, and not J. P. Morgan, who was called to a telephone in his presence by Edward H. Harriman in 1904 and asked to contribute $50,000 to Roosevelt's campaign fund. Both Charles Edward Russell and Judson C. Welliver had testified that Mr. MacVeagh told them the incident occurred in the office of J. P. Morgan. Mr. MacVeagh testified that he was in the office of Twombly one day the latter part of October, 1904, talking to Twombly when there was a telephone call. After Twombly had answered the phone he told MacVeagh that he had been talking to Harriman over the phone; that Harriman had been called to Washington by President Roosevelt, had found Roosevelt anxious that there be raised a very considerable sum for the campaign, and that Harriman had decided to undertake to raise $240,000 for Treasurer Bliss.

MacVeagh said that Twombly said to him that Harriman wanted him (Twombly) to give $50,000 and that he would be obliged to contribute.

BLISTERED HIM

District Attorney Shows Up Hockin to Alleged Fellow Conspirators.

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—Another blistering of Herbert Hockin by District Attorney Miller, garnished with additional charges of double-dealing, was the lot of the iron workers' international secretary and treasurer in federal court.

Miller said Hockin not only knew of the presence of a government dictograph attached to the desk of President Frank M. Ryan of the iron workers for more than two months during the grand jury investigation, but that Hockin turned over the keys of the union headquarters to the government and instructed them how to put the dictograph in place.

"Hockin knew every day that the government man sat at the dictograph and overheard all that proceeded in the union headquarters and that the dictograph was on Ryan's desk. He knew it because he helped to put that evidence-getting instrument there. He double-crossed in this manner the president of the union of which he was secretary and treasurer," said Miller.

PROSPERITY IS GOING AROUND

Evidence is Abundant that Indiana Farmers are Satisfied with Republican Administration.

Farmers of Indiana are giving evidence that there is no ground for the Bull Moose cry of "pass prosperity around." Prices and demand for all lines of farm products, including field, orchard, dairy, poultry, live stock, which have prevailed during the administration of President Taft, have brought a flood of prosperity to farmer farmers such as they never had in the history of the state. The farm homes have very materially advanced their scale of comfortable living in the last four years because prosperity has been passed around.

A concrete example of this general division of good times is given by a farmer near Knightstown, who has fortified himself against a possible panic in the event of a change in the national administration. He sold his farm near Knightstown, and has rented one in northern Rush county to await the results of the election and its effects on business. "I bought a good farm at $150 an acre, and I have paid for it with 9 cent hogs, 9 cent cattle and 70 cent corn during the good Republican times," said the farmer. "I have sold my farm at a good price, and I am going to keep my money until I see whether the good Republican times are to continue or the Democratic panic is to sue. I don't care about paying $150 per acre for a farm now and have to pay it out with 30 cent corn, 4 cent hogs and cattle. You can readily see why."

Every farmer in Indiana who has had a surplus of farm products to sell can appreciate the answer given by John G. Gartin, a farmer near Burney, who was asked by a neighbor if he was a Bull Moose. "Give me your pencil and I will write down my answer," said Mr. Gartin. This is what he wrote:

"I sold 81 cattle at 9 cents, weighed at home, and 70 hogs at 8 cents, weighed at home. My wheat was sold from machine for seed at $1.35 per bushel and clover seed sold for $10 per bushel. Why should I be?"

Mr. Gartin sold a pair of mares for $600 which further confirmed his belief that no change was needed in presidential administrations.

When Beveridge Was a Boss.

Beveridge's denunciation of political bosses recalls to men who were present in the Republican convention at Indianapolis two years ago the fact that the ex-senator, then endeavoring to retain his toga, was the boss supreme. He insisted upon "running the campaign" to suit himself and as a result John W. Kern went to the United States senate. But singular it is how and why some recollections can become so lumpy.

COL. DURBIN SPOKE TO LARGE AUDIENCE

widows and children of the federal government.

"And we approve the policy of the Southern states in granting pensions to the ex-confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows and children."

He said that this was the first time the word American soldiers had been used in that connection as heretofore it had always been Union soldiers. He pointed out that the only way confederate soldiers could receive a pension was through the federal government.

Col. Durbin made a pledge to the people two years ago that if elected and given a republican finance board, he would pay every dollar of the state debt that could be paid and would make provisions for the payment of the balance. This guarantee was carried out by Col. Durbin, and Tuesday night he made another pledge to the people that if they elected him and a republican secretary and auditor of state, who compose the finance board, he would pay every dollar of the debt that could be paid and would endeavor to give a business like administration.

In closing he said that he was a republican of principle, for principle, but not for office, and that it mattered not what the result might be in November he would still remain loyal to the party which had championed the rights of the people and had protected their interests.

Following the address of Col. Durbin, Dean Attkisson of Ohio, made a short talk. He compared the prices received by the farmers during the Cleveland administration with those received at the present time. He declared that a change in the administration would result in a panic and financial depression, and that the American people could not afford to elect a democratic president while the times were so prosperous and the people so happy and contented. He urged the people to stop, look, listen and then think before casting their vote. Mr. Attkisson related a number of humorous stories which kept his audience in a happy frame of mind. The meeting last night was regarded as one of the best of the campaign, and the republicans are more than pleased with the two addresses.

AT CROTHERSVILLE

Col. Durbin Speaks to Good Crowd at That Place.

The popularity of Col. Winfield T. Durbin in this part of the state was shown this morning at a meeting at Crothersville. Col. Durbin was on his way to Scottsburg to attend a committee meeting, and before he left Seymour decided to give a short address at Crothersville. A telephone message was sent there that he was coming and by the time he arrived about one hundred men had assembled for his address.

Col. Durbin was accompanied by Mrs. Durbin. They are making the trip in their automobile. At Scottsburg he spoke to a good audience and everywhere he in Indiana he had been heard by large crowds. Col. Durbin was accompanied to Scottsburg by Judge O. H. Montgomery, E. A. Remy and T. S. Blish.

Eugene Smith of Washington spent last evening here with friends and left this morning for Cincinnati to enter the college of music.
